THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT SIX FIVE-PASSENGER COUPE—31100

Announcing the Studebaker Light-Six Five-Passenger Coupe

Those who have wanted for a car which would combine the security of the Coupe with the comfort of the Sedan, will find three doors answered in this new Studebaker Light-Six Five-Passenger Coupe.

The new Coupe possesses a host of refinements such as are seldom only expected to find in the highest priced cars. The body reflects the fine craftsmanship for which Studebaker body builders have long been noted.

And being mounted on the sturdy Light-Six chassis, which has been conclusively demonstrated as dependable in the hands of Canadian motorists, the safety of the Light-Six Coupe can be accepted without question.

Backed by Studebaker's twenty-one years of manufacturing experience, the new Light-Six Five-Passenger Coupe is offered to the Canadian motorist with the assurance of representing a car admirably adapted to Canadian conditions.

CHRISTMAS

—Past and Present

BY ADAM HAROLD BROWN

children, and they filled them with their simple gifts, and hung them up with care. And in the morning eager children found them, and gathered round the denizen with shouts of glee, for Father Nicholas had filled their stockings.

And so from Patras, in Licia, has come the kindly custom of the Christmas stocking, and with it the belief in Good St. Nicholas. They call him Santa Claus, a name drawn from northern climes, but the kindly spirit is that of the Saint of Patras who brought his gifts on Christmas Day, believing that, having given them to "one of the least of these," he also brought his gifts to Bethlehem.

They have gone, many of the old ways and kindly customs that gathered about the season. They have passed with the changing of conditions and convenience of life, until they have become but mile-stones marking the passage of two thousand years. Only the heart behind them has not changed.

There are men who speak, bitterly, of our modern days, men who see thought but evil where there should be good, seek where there should be kindness, greed of gain and greediness, and a world gone mad. To them, as to others, comes Christmas, with its eager-faced children, with its sick comforted, its seagulls cared for, its prisoners of body or spirit, visited.

A sad world, my readers, but not so bad as it might be, and not so weary or so mean or so hopeless, while men still hold to Christmas, with its gifts and its kindnesses and its memories.

"Ah, but it is but one day a year," say the scoffers. And if that sad thing were true, one day might yet lighten the whole year. But men's hearts are not stirred by days or hours, and no one can measure that strange, and the spirit of Christmas may yet save the world.

And so at this Christmas season the memory of Good St. Nicholas comes to cheer our days, to give us comfort and hope for the future, And we bring our gifts not because they are gifts but because we wish to give. And the manner of the gift means nothing and the giving everything; for Christmas is in the heart.

OUT of the past of nearly two thousand years ago comes Christmas Day. Strange customs born of many lands, have blossomed around it to add their touch of sentiment and romance. Many myths and legends, many strange occurrences have been woven into the warp and woof of Christmas Day. Many of these strange customs have come and gone, but the memory of them remains, a kindly thought that mirrors the spirit and ideals of that first Christmas Day.

The figure of Santa Claus has come of more recent years. Many countries claim his origin, many trails lead back to some suggestion of this jolly, kindly figure; but the main trail leads to Lycia, and to St. Nicholas of Patras.

Many, many years ago, in the household of good Nicholas of Patras, the children brought their gifts, just as the wise men brought them from the East. But in the household of Nicholas there were no costly holdings, but they found the carefully filled stockings of the

SALLY WARNOCK, "HUMANE LADY" OF WEST, FAIRY GODMOTHER TO WINNIPEG'S "STRAYS"
This Secretary of the Humane Society Makes Children Happy By Donating Homeless Dogs and Cats Instead of Chasing Them
By DOROTHY G. BELL

THE first time Sally Warnock saw a stray dog, she was a little girl. She was sitting on the porch of her home, and a small, shaggy dog came up to her. She reached out and touched its head. The dog wagged its tail and looked up at her. She was so fascinated by the dog that she stayed outside until her mother called her in. From that day on, Sally was a dog lover. She had a special place in her heart for the homeless dogs and cats of Winnipeg.

She was a little girl, but she was a dog lover. She had a special place in her heart for the homeless dogs and cats of Winnipeg. She was a little girl, but she was a dog lover. She had a special place in her heart for the homeless dogs and cats of Winnipeg.
